SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Hiram Hillyer in his hot youth killed Lynn Hambright and escaped the penalty of the law. Haunted by remorse for his deed he resolves to save a man as a substitute for Hambright. George Buckley is the son of a thieving mountain farmer, who has been sent to the penitentiary. Hillyer takes George from his bad environment, educates him and takes him into his grain warenouse. George's great danger is deink in moments of despondency. He yields once and Hillyer tells him his story. George promises to justify the sid man's hose for him. George is in love with Lydia Cranstom, only child of proud Virginians, who hold him in consumpt. Gev. Telfare is his favored rival. Hillyer undertakes a grantic speculation in wheat, resolving to risk his all in tand be guided in every move by George Buckley's advice. George advises selling at $1.42, which Jacobs & Co. offer. Jacobs & Co. want thirty days, and Hillyer believes they are feeting ready to fail.
